then transferred through a couple of different funds to eventually get to the cash fund where it should wind up. It also allows persons who purchase the message or spirit plates to choose the month of registration as is allowed for other plates. Under current law, the date of issuance of the specialty plate controls the expiration date and it's always a complete year, which is somewhat inefficient, and so this...and that can cost the taxpayer extra money. Also under this provision, when message plates or spirit plates are expired or transferred, as with other plates, it allows a credit for the unused portion of the plate fee, so that's a clean-up provision. It also allows the grain hauling permit statutes to accommodate issuing permits electronically rather than by hand on a paper form, and that is another...strictly an efficiency measure. So that is...that's a component. The next component is LB 922, which allows the Department of Motor Vehicles to accept an out-of-state title with an application as long as that title be valid for transfer of the vehicle in the state where the title originated. This has become a...a problem where out-of-state titles may...someone may move in to the state. They want to transfer the title and in the state that they lived in before the signatures are valid for transfer but technically not under Nebraska law. So county clerks run into this occasionally and they ask that this be cleaned up and Department of Motor Vehicles brought us the bill and it was supported and no opposition at the hearing or in the committee. The last portion of the amendment, and it's the most substantive, is the salvage clean-up bill, LB 688, if you want to check that bill on your screen. For about the last two years, Department of Motor Vehicles and the motor vehicle industry has been working to clean up our salvage title statutes so that Nebraska no longer is considered to be a title-washing state. It, among other things, it establishes clear guidelines for when you designate a salvage vehicle or a manufactured buy-back vehicle, buy-back title. If the title comes into the state with the designation "salvage", it requires that that designation be carried forward, whereas now that is not necessarily the case. And I certainly would be glad to explain more specifics on that if you would like. The committee hearing, there was one person who testified in opposition at the time of the hearing and that was Jim Dobler with the Nebraska Insurance Information Service, and he had a couple of concerns
